

Being an ADEE executive member, some key points to note.

Members of the ADEE executive are expected to participate in the decision-making processes of ADEE as the body responsible for the oversight of the day to day activities of ADEE (as delegated by the General Assembly).

In participating in discussion, you do so as a European educator of the oral health professions and are expected to bring a broad frame to these discussions so as to enable consensus and collaborative decision-making. While this will of course involve your own national context awareness and understanding of wider European contexts is preferred.

Meetings are chaired by the ADEE president or nominee and the ADEE officers (Sec Gen, Treasurer, Editor, EU Affairs Officer) have specific roles and responsibilities.

You will be:

- A good communicator in a multicultural environment
- Have at least five years experience as an oral health educator
- Have a good understanding of your national education context and that of other European nations
- Have a solid understanding and awareness of the key EU educational structures guiding documents
- Have an existing network of dental educators with whom you can share and disseminate ADEE activity nationally and regionally

What you can expect to:

- meet monthly via ZOOM
- meet at least twice face to face (usually for a two day block of meetings)
- take on practical work as part of ADEE activities
- have a key functional role at the ADEE annual meetings through the chairing of sessions etc
- actively attend and participate in meetings and communicate effectively with the ADEE office and your fellow executive colleagues
